NTL will be back At least for next summer

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bowing to pressure from its membership, the National Training Laboratories Board of Directors has rolled back its decision to phase out NTL's Bethel operations at the end of the current summer session.

It is not yet clear how many participants will be in Bethel next year, but it appears that at least half as many as this year, perhaps considerably more, can be expected. Also unresolved is the nature of the organization's long-term relationship to the town.

NTL, which has been offering training courses in Bethel for more than 40 years, announced in June that it would cease virtually all its operations here at the end of this summer.

In explaining the decision at that time, NTL Executive Director Lennox Joseph cited inadequate training space and facilities in Bethel, increased complaints from staff and par-ticipants about the arrangements here, and about and the inconvenience of getting to and from Bethel.

Also, Lennox said, the nature of NTL's clientele has changed over the years, and the new breed of participants prefers "the kind of place you see on slick brochures."

The news of an NTL pullout was greeted with dismay by many in-town merchants, some of whom rely on NTL participants for as much as 40 percent of their annual business. The board decision to pull out was initially presented to the town as ir-See NTL, page 6

During the day Monday, stores were filled with prudent shoppers preparing for the worse and stocking up on batteries, candles and lamp oil.

But by midnight, Bob had come and gone without doing any serious harm. During the evening, winds whipped across the area, felling trees and blowing debris, and the storm dumped 4.1 inches of rain in Bethel, causing some minor flash flooding.

Scattered power outages were reported throughout the county, but most of the local area was spared. Lights did go out in Newry and Bethel's Mayville, but they were back on before dawn.

Cable television service in the area went out early Monday evening, but only in isolated pockets.

In Woodstock, Town Manager Vern Maxfield said flash flooding wiped out a few culverts near Concord and Shagg ponds. Road Foreman Percy Monk spent much of the night removing downed trees from town roads. In Newry, Great Brook poured over its banks and onto Route 26, washing out a small area of the roadway. In Bethel, Road Foreman Bob Pilgrim said one crew member drove around during the storm clearing debris from fallen trees and checking ability to write legibly are failing her. "I'll miss writing for the paper," she said. "I've had it on my mind for so many years."

Gladys said she couldn't remember just how many years that writing her column has been a weekly activity. She guessed she'd been writing for about 15 or 20 years—but a quick check through the dusty archives of The Citizen revealed she's been filing reports for over 25 years.

A lifelong Stoneham resident, Gladys said the town has changed since she moved into her grand-

"In the years before the state road was put in we were just a very small quiet town of neighbors, and now it's changing," she said. "You used to be able to leave the doors unlocked, but you can't now. But it's still a nice town." Gladys said there has been some minor vandalism in town which makes her wary of leaving her home unattended.

The state road, constructed in the early 1950s, brought increased traffic to the lakes area and an influx of summer residents, Gladys said, but the out that the site plan submitted to, and approved by, the Bethel Planning Board does not meet permit by rule regulations. In a letter to Town Manager

Madeleine Henley, Aaron Shapiro, project development coordinator for Gleichman & Co., said that in order to meet the requirements the road layout on the plan would have to be altered. A five-foot wide sidewalk planned for the right side of the access road would have to be moved to the left side and narrowed to three-feet, Shapiro wrote, terming the changes "extremely minor." But the road design for the project had been worked out over the course of many meetings with the Bethel selectmen-who must approve the road design before the planning board will consider the plan.

Shapiro asked that the selectmen approve the changes at their meeting Monday evening, but the board demurred. Citing concerns about slope changes and drainage problems if the alterations are approved, they instructed Henley to ask the developer to address those issues and to appear before the board at its next meeting. Shapiro told The Citizen Tuesday that he expected the new complication would create "only minor delays, part of a week or so," for the project.

Bethel selectmen prepare Apartment to set up transfer station hits snag

The Bethel Board of Selectmen has authorized Town Manager Madeleine $50,000 a year more than partial curb-Henley to begin the paperwork reside pickup. The selectmen also worquired for setting up an in-town tansfer station. Faced with a looming Department of Environmental Protection deadline for closing down the town landfill (Jan. 1, 1992), the selectmen Monday evening voted to have Henley submit a permit-by-rule application to the DEP to allow the town to set up a small transfer station behind the present recycling center.

Currently, approximately half the town's residential solid waste and most of its commercial solid waste is picked up at curbside by D&E Sanitation and transported to the Norway-Paris Transfer Station or to BAR Co.

Commercial and residential waste not picked up by D&E is disposed of by residents at the town landfill on Route

However, with the DEP deadline for closing the landfill approaching, the selectmen have known for some time that they would eventually have to make a decision about how to continue disposing of the town's solid waste.

At their regular meeting Monday, Henley presented them with a report outlining several options: whole town curbside pickup, partial curbside pickup in conjunction with a small transfer station, construction of a new large capacity transfer station or a new landfill.

Following a short discussion, the last two options were ruled out as prohibitively expensive. The first, whole-

The three selectmen present Monday (Art Gilbert, Norman Putnam and Henry Dombkowski) then voted unanimously to go along with Henley's recomended option of partial curbside pickup and a small transfer station. The plan calls for Henley to begin preparing the necessary paperwork immediately and for D&E Sanitation to stop hauling waste south-and to take it instead to the town landfill, where one waste cell remains to be

Henley noted that the remaining cell at the landfill must be filled in any case before it is closed and sealed, and if it was not filled with trash, the town would have to pay to fill it with gravel. She estimated that the town would save approximately $30,000 in transportation and tipping fees by not hauling waste to Norway and Oxford for the remainder of the year.

That money, she said, could be put toward the cost of setting up and operating the transfer station.

Henley said that once the permit by See TRANSFER STATION, page 5

Letters to the editor

BRING ON THE JETS

To the Editor: I find it ironic that it was 10 years ago that the low level flight controversy first came to a head. At that time, the issue was disruption of wildlife. The following is a letter written by my late father 10 years ago on this matter. I hope you find it appropriate to

FLIGHT DEFENDED To the Editor:

To start with, it makes me wonder what has become of the idea of "love of country," "patriotism," and standing behind the ideals of a society that needs the backing of its people in order to survive. The point that I would like to make in this letter is one that is of concern to us all; and that is the need for the low level and other training flights of our U.S. military planes in this and other areas of our state and other territory. The way I interpret the meaning of some of these letters against these flights, is that the people on these missions are merely flying around for a joy ride and in such a case should fly somewhere else. These flights aren't necessary, especially if they are going to bother me.

Well, I'd like you to know, and I speak with some experience as a person who has had the privilege, yes, I say "privilege," to have been able to serve my country in WWII, that this kind of training is absolutely necessary for the future. Someone wrote, "Why don't they train over the ocean?" They do. Most of the activities from the base in Brunswick is carried out over water as anti-submarine patrols.

But not all matters of offensive action in the future would be confined to such. I don't believe there are many defense factories, missile silos or other military targets built on water. So these pilots have to be trained to carry out their missions over all types of ter- To the Editor: rain and no doubt this area is one that a few planes flying over. It's quite possible that if the crews of the aircraft involved in the failed rescue mission in Iran had had extensive training in desert conditions, the likes of which they ran into over there, they might have had more success in their ventures.

All I can say is any military plane with the U.S. insignia on it can fly over my property day or night, at any altitude it desires. I much prefer it to one that some day could fly over with the hammer and sickle on it, simply because someone wasn't properly

Some people will read this and say "nonsense—it couldn't happen." Well, in that case, maybe Pearl Harbor didn't happen either. Keep them flying. Robert J. Lowe

The vote came at the prodding of Rick Whitney, who has written a number of letters to town officials complaining that the town uses a dou- rent because of the planning board's ble standard in the application of its building regulations.

According to Whitney, if a private citizen or business proposes to the matter, the board voted renovate or change the use of a piece unanimously that the renovation work draws small turnout of property, the planning board demands that the work strictly comply with the town's Site Plan Review Ordinance. If the project does not comply, it is rejected.

But, Whitney contends, when the town itself wants to undertake a similar project, the planning board regularly looks the other way-giving tacit approval without even a cursory review of the proposed work. As a case in point, Whitney pointed to renovation of the meeting room in the town office. A room which once held 10 people now holds 40, he argued and the increased traffic involved should have automatically triggered a review under the site plan ordinance. Yet the town never submitted the work for review, and the planning board—which now meets in the room in question—never sought to assert its authority over the project.

Board member Reggie Brown acknowledged that other town projects, including the recycling center and water district shed, had also been spared formal site plan review. But, he asked Whitney and the half dozen audience members who had turned out to lend their support, "Do ter, involving a business, was pursued you want us to close down the town of- so quickly—while he had to work for fice and build it somewhere else?" Following a half-hour discussion of should have been submitted for planning board review, and it directed planning assistant Stacy Benjamin to contact to town attorney to see where to go from here.

The board then moved on to other matters, but Whitney's complaint about a double standard was to surface again later.

Benjamin said she has received a number of complaints that the Bethel Depot on lower Main Street is now being used as an auction house.

She said that the site had been approved by the board as a retail store and that her own review of the tapes and meeting notes from that time indicated that it had not been approved as an auction house, but only as a mailing address for owner Joe Gaides' auction business.

The complaints, she said, have been primarily about the traffic tie ups and parking problems at the site when an auction is in progress.

The board instructed Benjamin to invite Gaides to the next meeting to clarify the situation.

At this point Whitney, who was still in the audience, asked why this matmonths to get the board to consider his complaints about the town office work. He was given no real answer. In other matters last week, the Lewiston. It was supposed to have been built of brick, but financial considerations dictated wood construction. Even 30. the building was soon lost to Bethel Savings Bank, which held the mortgage and continued to own the building until its gift to the town in

Since its earliest days, the building has been a center of commercial and political activity. Several businesses and offices have been located on the first floor, including the Bethel Citizen since 1908 and its predecessor the Bethel News, which began in 1895. Also on the first floor were the operations of the Bethel Savings Bank until 1974, the Bethel National Bank (1905-1945), Casco Northern Bank (1945-1968), a jewelry store, insurance offices, law office, photography studio, etc. On the second floor was long the offices of the selectmen, assessors, and overseers of the poor and of course the Odeon Hall where countless dances, plays, socials, shows, concerts, lectures, chautauqua meetings, Roman Catholic Services, silent movies and later the "talkies" were held. Gould Academy graduations were held here for many years (until the construction of Bingham Gymnasium in 1922) and lively town meetings were order of the day until they were moved to Telstar in the late 1960s.

Howe ended his talk by reviewing this proud history and urging that those interested work to see what might be done to keep the Cole Block serving the people of Bethel in the next century as it has in the past 100 years. During the business meeting President Jane Hosterman announced that the next meeting would be the annual one and commemorate the Society's twenty five years of existence. Judges for the children's parade were Earlon Paine, Tineke Ouwinga and Ruth Silver; supervising children's games were Jack and Lucy Nordahl. A special thank you is due all of those who contributed flowers to the annual flower show for Sudbury Canada Days, the summer heritage

The show this year was particularly good, especially in light of the dry weather that has been the pattern for most of the year. Those participating this year were Barbara Douglas, John Payne, Carole Duplessis, Elizabeth Carter, Sudie Vachon, Ruth Cox, Amy Davis, Jane Vogt, Barbara Herrick Brown, Susan Kettinger, Joy Yarnell, Helen Morton, Shirley Clough, Gertrude Hutchins, Geraldine Howe and

Margaret Joy Tibbetts. The annual gathering of Maine Kimballs was held at the Dr. Moses Mason House on Sunday, Aug. 18. Kimballs came from such places as Bethel, North Waterford, Yarmouth, Portland, Kittery, Winsor and Poland. Master of ceremonies for the event was Albert Kimball of Warwick, Mass., George and Judy Kimball, National Kimball Family co-chairs for Genealogical Research, were introduced and reported on the activities of the national organization, including the updating of the second volume of Decatur Hastings. The gathering ended with the singing of the Kimball song. Local coordinator of the annual event is Elizabeth Mason Carter of West Bethel.

David Preble, Prim's Pharmacy Is Chronic Fatigue Syndrome a Disease?

Within the last few years, a condition referred to as "chronic fatigue syndrome" has been described in the medical literature. According to recent articles, there is debate as to whether or not this is a disease. The debate revolves around its cause, how to diagnose it, and how it should be treated. On one side are experts who claim that the condition may not exist at all. An equal number of experts seem to point to a health problem with sudden onset in previously otherwise healthly individuals. According to these experts, people of all ages, occupations, and income are affected, with women experiencing the condition more often than men or children.

It is speculated that some type of viurs causes the victim to become very tired. Bed rest may not help. The fatigue may be so severe as to cause the person's normal activity level to be less than half of what it was for the previous six months. There may be mild fever, sore throat, muscle weakness, joint pain, and sleep disturbances. One of the most common symptoms of chronic fatigue syndrome is men-tal depression. Treatment of chronic fatigue syndrome varies with symptoms. Prescription antidepressant medicines have helped a number of individuals. Other treatments may become apparent as we learn more about this interesting, yet poorly described condiNTL

Continued from page revocable. The only way to change it, Lennox said in June, would be for NTL's 436 member to vote out the current 12-member board.

Over the course of the summer, however, the board backed off considerably from that hard-line position. As work of the decision spread among the membership, and as members and participants met in Bethel for this summer's schedule of workshops, opposition to the decision mounted.

Members criticized not only the decision itself, but also the way it had been arrived at and communicated. NTL member Howard Lamb, who spent most of the summer in Bethel, began a newsletter to provide a forum for the members concerns. A letter from NTL member Bill Golden is representative of many in the 10-issue newletter.

"I really couldn't believe it!" Golden said of the decision to abandon Bethel. Of the board process that led to that decision, he wrote: "A basic value NTL has always sought to help others learn was that problems can't be effectively solved without the participation of those affected by the solution. Where was consensual validation in survey used to justify the board decision "loaded" and "a half-hearted sop to democratic decision making." Of Bethel itself, he wrote: "the very isolation of Bethel, its face-to-face community, and its rural beauty helped both staff and participants learn and nurture core NTL values." Other letters seconded Golden's

Golden called the membership observations. "I deplore these choices." wrote Arthur Freedman. "They suggest the type of unilateral political power tactics to which I have persisted in believing NTL was philosophically and ideologically opposed-in spite of the Board's and the Executive's behavior to the contrary over the years."

Of the "mission statement" used to validate NTL's new direction, Freedman wrote: "It is so broad and allencompassing that it says nothing. ... pelled into international ventures as compensation for our domestic ineffectiveness?"

The newsletter also proposed a membership referendum to declare the original decision "null and void." By the conclusion of the summer session, 31 percent of the membership had responded, opting by a 3 to 1 margin to overturn the board's

A committee of Bethel residents also met over the course of the summer and, among other initiatives, offered to provide detailed assistance to NTL in addressing the concerns that led to the decision to leave town. In July, the organization's board issued a clarification of its original decision and agreed to hold some courses in Bethel next summer. The matter is also expected to be taken up again at a board meeting in mid-September.

Plans for next summer

Over the course of this summer, NTL's plans for its next season in Bethel have been "changing all the time," according to program director Nancie Appleman-Vassie.

At the moment plans call for NTL to offer three courses a week here, over a nine-week period.

While the number of courses will be less than in the past, she said, NTL hoped the increased space that would be made available for each course would lead to a larger number of participants in each.

"We want to maximize the quality of programs," she said.

Last summer nearly 1,000 NTL participants took part in courses in Bethel. It is uncertain as yet how many participants can be expected next summer, but estimates range from 50 to 90 percent of the usual

At least one change planned for next summer will come as good news to local lodging establishments. Appleman-Vassil said NTL did not plan to reopen the "Clusters" lodging units, which currently accommodate 32 participants at a time. The decision will add substantially to the number of participants seeking lodging in town.

Current plans also call for a reduced level of administrative support located in Bethel and for the NTL Resource Center to be open on a limited schedule.

The dining service, offering lunch and a continental breakfast, will be continued, she said.

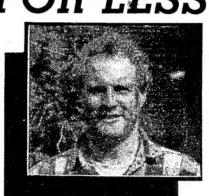

The course offerings for next summer currently include personal growth, trainer training, management and human interaction courses. The human interaction courses will be offered every two weeks, she said rather than weekly-as they current-

Gladys says she no longer gets out to church every Sunday, but her minister brings her tapes of the recorded sermons.

Being able to live independently gives Gladys a great deal of satisfaction, but she hasn't done it alone. She said she appreciates the support her community has given her. "I have especially good neighbors," she said. "They're always bringing me something."

A neighbor mows her lawn and a nearby cousin does the laundry. The postman even interrupts his motor route to deliver her mail by hand. Gladys also enjoys keeping in touch with the world outside her community. A favorite nephew subscribes to the Lewiston Sun-Journal for her and she talks almost daily with old friends on the telephone. "The days just go by before I know it," Gladys said. She admits to being somewhat of a night owl and then sleeping late the next day. She said she especially enjoys sitting up to see NBC's Tonight Show with Johnny Gladys used to raise Siamese cats, and her Siamese, Ching, is now a constant companion. Ching is an avid hunter and never fails to bring home his trophies, which Gladys says she is forced to reluctantly admire. But recently one of the cat's catches was more than a challenge for Gladys' admiration.

She let Ching in from the porch one evening without turning the light on. "I turned the light on and he had a snake. I'm awfully afraid of snakes, she said."The snake went under the kitchen table and then into the living room under the TV and it seemed like he was everywhere. I thought, 'What am I going to do?"" Gladys decided to battle with the snake herself. So, using her walker to get around and armed with long dowel. she went after him. She said she's occasionally gotten herself "into trouble" for telling people to take better care of their animals, but said she doesn't care much about what other people think of her defending animal rights. "I don't like to see anybody misusing animals," she said. Now that she's retired from her

Small woodlot owners to hold 10th field day

Small woodland owners (SWOAM) from Western Maine will gather for their 10th annual field day on Saturday Aug. 24. The theme for the day will be forest site conversion.

Every person who owns a woodlot, small or large, at some time has sites that grow the wrong trees or wishes to change the kind of trees growing there, either for wood production, for wildlife enhancement, for esthetic or personal reasons.

The chosen site in Poland for this year's meeting has been burned over several times by forest fires started from the old railroad line that crossed the flat plains in the area. This gave the present owner, Fred Huntress Jr., of Poland an opportunity to try several methods of regeneration.

Besides seeing the results of these conversions, the group will view several equipment displays, have early coffee and donuts, bring their own lunch for a noon break at Range State Park next door, and visit a bark grinding operation at Jolly Farmer site at 2 p.m.

The meeting will start at 9:30 a.m. (8:30 for coffee and display) Follow signs from the blinker on Route 26 at Poland Corner onto Poland Corner Road, right on Plains Road and 2 miles to left on Bailey Hill Road to site. From Auburn left from Route 121 on Empire Road in Minot, 3 miles to right on Plains Road and 1 mile to right on Bailey Hill Road to site. The public interested in woodlot management is invited to join the fun.

Her grandaughter Samantha came down to help her transport the cake to Bethel for the wedding and reception that followed and they were gone at ten in the morning and didn't get home

As one lady said when something like that is postponed, it is never as good as it might have been in the first place. It was held at Michael and Wynona Woolf's in Auburn and they have such a lovely big back yard there would have been plenty of room for all who would have come. Those who didn't come don't know the fun they missed.

While there, we went out back and picked lots of blackberries so I am to make some jelly when I get all together. That should taste good.

Hope Lovejoy went with the young people's group from the Baptist Church for an overnight camp out at Hastings campgrounds near Gilead. There were 18 young folks with the minister so he may have had his hands full but hopefully they were all good and had a good time.

The Lovejoys and McKeens went up on the Kingfield Hill Road to Haverinen's for a birthday gettogether for her sister on Sunday. All had a grand time I am sure.

Franklin Grange will be having music and talent night the 19th and another meeting to keep in mind is past master's night which will take place on September 16. A potluck supper will precede the meeting. Installation of officers will take place on Sept. 2 at Franklin Grange with West Paris joining us. Conant's group will do the installation I believe. Think I have said enough so hope everyone enjoys this weather and has a good week.

bigger audience know what is going on with all the things that I know of are going on in town. And of course, they are from my eyes. As in other issues, you may have gotten the idea that I think a lot of those I know from the fire department and around the Newry area. As to who is visiting who, I need to hear from these people to print the visitations. Now to what has happened this week. On Friday August 9, after doing my usual chores in Bethel, I went over to my second home (as mother has hinted), the Sunday River fire station. After dropping off some mail that I had for the chief to look at, I decided to try and use the maxim to wash off the dirt that the chief and his son had gotten on the drive way. After pulling out the maxim. I could not get the booster hose to spray the driveway. I called Alan Fleet and realized that what I wanted to do was easily done by getting the hose from the Bear River fire house. I went and got the garden hose and did what I could.

Saturday, August 10, was the third soggy Sudbury Canada Days in a row, but The Children's Parade was held inside again. Maybe next year, as grand marshall, I'll come with full turnout gear and it will be a hot, sunny day. Monday August 12, I was drawing out at my second home with the chief and his son Matt. They were finishing landscaping and I was stuffing a forestry bag with hose.

Tuesday night was a County Republican meeting with Dr. Howe in Fryburg. At the end of the meeting we had the five state representatives from Oxford county speak. Included was Bethel's own, Al Barth. Being involved with fire departments I questioned the five about what seems to be increasing state mandates to fire departments. They mentioned that there are some in state government that would like to see the fire departments go the way of the school administrative districts, in other words a regional approach to fire departments. I'm more concerned with political interference in volunteer fire departments. It seems that any time the state mandates, it doesn't supply any money for towns to do their bidding.

Wednesday, August 14 was paint and run day. Nice and hot and sunny. Saw Dr. Howe and his parents in two separate trips around Bethel. Stopped at my second home to put new pictures in the photo album. Well, that's all the telling them the local news face to news I know of. Glad for the rain, but face. I look at it as a chance to let a we do need more!

SEATTLE 2 MAINE—Douglas Vollmer, a biology teacher at North Yarmouth Academy, and his daughter Jennifer stopped to spend the night with Gould Headmaster Bill Clough and wife Ki last Thursday evening. The visit was a bit out of the ordinary, in that Doug and Jennifer would begin, the next morning, the last leg of a cycling journey which started in Seattle, Washington on June 24 and would end in Yarmouth on Aug. 16. Their route, though primarily through the northern United States, also took them into Canada. Jennifer graduated from the University of Arizona in May and thought that biking home across country with dad was a great way to end her college days and begin her professional career. Jennifer said that the sign on the back of her dad's bicycle "Seattle 2 Maine" drew many cheers and friendly honks from both pedestrians and motorists along the route.

pordered or roadside hung, with these delicate nodding bells, which look as though ready to tinkle at the least disturbance and sound an alarm among the flowers.

Venture along the brooks or ponds and occasionally you find one of our most beautiful rare flowers, the cardinal. Its bright color, sophisticated irregularity of blossom, an attraction to humming birds, combine to give it an aura all its own. Because of over picking, it has become quite rare. Its brilliant gleam is reflected from the shadowy waters edge with unequalled intensity-"As if some wounded eagles breast/Slow throbbing o' the

The air has the high rich yet subtle perfume of the mountains; possibly mingled with a rich aroma swept landward by the ocean at decline of day. In the gardens, in the silence of the August afternoon, there is the musical droning of the bees.

Soon, so soon, the windy pastures and deep forests of the mountains will be alive with color and the sigh of the wind will tell us that autumn is on its all did a lot of errands. We called on Lettie Brooks at the hospital where she was recovering from having her gall bladder removed. She came home Thursday. We found her sitting up and gaining well.

We are glad she is home again. Esther and Olive Davis took a ride Sunday afternoon after going to the dump to West Greenwood from there to Hunts Corner, to Songo Cemetery Road out through to West Bethel. We called on Fanny Cummings. They were busy picking their late cultivated blueberries.

From there we stopped for ice cream at W. Bethel. What a feed! Then we came right home. A delightful ride on a beautiful day.

SALE P22-91-1 NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SELL SURPLUS PROPERTY The following described structure is surplus to the needs of the White Mountain National Forest, and the Federal Government. It is no longer needed nor is it suitable for any other official purpose. 1. Two story house, barn, and single story mud room, all attached, located ½ mile off Virginia Lake Road, in the Town of Stoneham, ME. The lodge is approximately 200 yards to the left. The house is two story approximately 24'x34'. The mud room is 12'x12', the barn is two story approximately 20'x24'. The siding is wood; the roof is asphalt shingled. The cabin will very likely require disassembly to remove. The entrance road will require some clearing for removal.

The Forest Service is offering the cabin for sale, but not the underlying or surroun-

Anyone interested is requested and urged to inspect the cabin and site location, so that he may intelligently determine value versus cost of removal and site cleanup. The cabin must be removed by December 31, 1991. The site must also be cleaned up by that date. Time extensions will not be considered. The cabin will be sold to the purchaser making the highest lump sum bid. The Forest Service will consider selling the cabin to a purchaser for the consideration of removing it and cleaning up the

NOTE: If the cabin is not sold, the Forest Service will remove and destroy it. Sale will take place on September 11 1991, at 2:00 p.m. in the Laconia Federal Building, Laconia, NH. Sale is by sealed bid. The cabin and any debris must be entirely removed. The removal and site cleanup will be subject to the inspection and administration of the District Ranger Chad Converse. He will be the Forest Service officer in charge of administrating the removal. Pre-bid inspections should be arranged through the District Ranger, Bridge St., Bethel, ME. Telephone 207/824-2134. Copies of the bid may be obtained from the

THE STATE OF MAINE OXFORD, SS DIVISION OF NORTHERN OXFORD ELEVENTH DISTRICT COURT

JULY 12, 1991 An action entitled HOMEBANK, FSB v. JOSEPH A. BAGNELL and LEO J. BELANGER and ANN Y. BELANGER, is now pending in the Division of Northern Oxford, Eleventh District Court. The original Summons and Complaint and Ex Parte Motion for Service by Publication pertaining thereto being on file in said Court and available for examination by interested parties.

The above described action shall be entered on the Court's Docket in accordance with MRCP 4 (g) following notice thereof which shall be given by Plaintiff to the Defendant, Joseph A. Bagnell, formerly of Route 2, Gilead, Maine and Route 99, Malden, Massachusetts, by causing a true and ac-curate copy of this notice to be published in the Bethel Citizen printed at Bethel, Maine once a week for three successive weeks beginning August 7, 1991.

The substance of the above described action is that Joseph A. Bagnell is indebted to Plaintiff and that the Plaintiff seeks to exercise its right of foreclosure pursuant to a Mortgage Deed of Joseph A. Bagnell dated September 21, 1988 and recorded at the Oxford County Registry of Deeds at Book 1604,
